U. S. SOLDIERS LAND IN FRANCE WITH TANKS IN SMASHING COMMANDO RAID

NAZIS POURING STRONG FORCE AGAINST REDS

Reserves Pushed to Front in Heavy Fighting in Don River Bend Area.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Aug. 19—The German high command reported strong reserves today were being thrown into the Don bend and Caucasus battles from south of Voronezh to the high plains of Pyatigorsk in the bolstered onslaught which began a full-scale drive toward Stalingrad and along the Black Sea line to the shores of the Caspian.

The Russians were fighting back fiercely. A communique declared the Nazis' gains since they had cost 1,250,000 casualties—more than those of Russia—and said Adolf Hitler was draining western Europe for the new fighting men required in the east.

The Russians fell back in the Don bend where their counter-offensive appeared spent, and gave ground in the region of Kotelnikovo, 170 miles southeast of the destroyed and abandoned Maikop oil fields.

The Nazi drive down the Rostov-Baku rail line across the Caucasus had as its next apparent objective beyond Pyatigorsk and Mineralyne Vody the railroad junction town of Georgievsk, only a few miles beyond the Nazi spearheads.

In the northwestern Caucasus the Russians reported repulsing German attacks in the Krasnodar area 50 miles east of the port of Novorossisk.

Defenders of the Krasnodar region of the western Caucasus routed a German infantry regiment, the bureau said.

While the Germans gained in a Don bend sector, three Nazi attacks were cited in which they lost four tanks and more than 300 men.

Southwest of Stalingrad, Red army patrols were active overnight and one was credited with the destruction of seven Nazi supply trucks a searchlight installation and two anti-aircraft guns behind the German line.

Midnight reports indicated a resurgence of Nazi effort along both arms of a pincer groping toward Stalingrad and the Volga, with the Red army counterattacking in the Krasnodar sector and fending off assaults in the Proletarsk area of the Caucasus.

Already wedged into Russian positions in one sector of the Don bend front, the Germans massed large formations to strike anew there southeast of Kletskaya and forced a Russian unit to retire, the Soviet information bureau announced.

MARION YOUTH HAS LUNCH WITH GABLE

Jack Lewis in Chance Meeting with Movie Star.

A brief minutes at lunch-time idol Clark Gable and corporal in the army, is a never-forgotten experience for Jack, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis of 357 Brightwood.

Jack arrived home Monday from Kelly field, Tex., where he was on a Southern Pacific train San Antonio, Tex., to Houston when he chanced to meet Gable in the train dining car.

"I was in the dining car," Lewis told his family today, "but all but one table was occupied. The single table at a table for two and Gable was seated. I noticed I was wearing my cadet uniform Gable asked me to sit at his table."

Lewis said any question of Lewis' wearing the uniform represented, Gable told him that it was all right. The U. S. air corps flying cadet. Lewis said that all during the meal Gable was swamped by autograph-hunters. When they arrived in New Orleans a flock of photographers and newsmen were on hand to interview Gable.

At New Orleans it was necessary for Gable to change from a bus to another transportation another part of town. Instead of boarding a streetcar, Lewis said Gable got on a Greyhound bus. Gable's attitude toward everyone Lewis said was as a "descent chap."

U. S. Rangers Train Hard For Commando Service

Secret Drill Goes on for Weeks as Volunteers Toughen Up for Dangerous Raids on Nazi Lines.

By RICE YAHNER
AP War Correspondent

AT THE UNITED STATES RANGERS BATTALION SOMEWHERE IN BRITAIN, Aug. 19—The United States Rangers, Uncle Sam's new breed of fighting men who joined Canadian, British and Fighting French commandos today in the first AEF invasion of Hitler's Europe, had been training secretly for weeks under the tutelage of their seasoned British partners.

Their mentors are men who toss hand grenades across the dinner table and casually jump 20-foot cliffs and their American pupils have been taught to kill with the cunning of the Indian and the ruthlessness of a gangster.

I was the first American newspaperman to visit one of their camps when they were putting the finishing touches on training for such ventures as today's raid on Dieppe.

They have climbed 4,000-foot mountains through forests never before penetrated by man.

They have been on speed marches of 36 miles in half a day time and again.

They have practiced beach landings while rifle and machine-gun fire bored holes through the paddles of the men manning the boats.

They have taken both their tactics and their name from Rogers' Rangers, one of America's most romantic fighting outfits who, under Robert Rogers, stalked northern America in the French and Indian war.

Like them, the new American rangers have been taught to kill expertly and silently with their knives and bare hands as well as with guns and grenades.

They are as much at home on sea as on land.

Make Forced Marches

Just to show them what a trained Ranger is expected to do, their British instructors stalked a deer in the forest and when the stag was surrounded a big Scot leaped upon him and killed him with a knife.

A sentry's throat can be slit in the same, silent way.

On my visit I rowed with them in a collapsible canvas boat to a landing on a beach where tracer bullets from a British bren gun were spewing so close to the gunwales you almost were able to reach out your hand to them.

Play with Explosives

Land mines and grenades splattered us with mud and water. Rifle tracer bullets singed by so close that one punctured a mess kit slung from a Ranger's belt.

Earlier in their training, a hand grenade had landed, fuse smoking, in one Ranger boat. Private Clayton Schooley, 22, of Munsing, Mich., picked up the sizzling bomb and with a shout of "overboard!" flung it into the water.

He didn't know its explosive charge had been extracted.

Wrestling (dark alley style) and jujitsu were after-dinner pastimes at the camp I visited. A man out of condition was a candidate for the hospital if he joined the fun.

Every Ranger was a volunteer from the United States forces in Britain eager for action—which they got before the enemy first felt their steel.

Most of the original Rangers were Westerners but they also included lion-tamer Corp. James Haines 29 of Lexington Ky., who worked with Frank Buck and thinks that "working with the Rangers ain't no different."

The Rangers who are writing a new page in American history today as the first of the AEF to invade Hitler's Europe take their name from an intrepid band which helped lay this country's colonial foundations.

They were Rogers' Rangers, an 18th century version of the modern commandoes, a militia outfit raised by an American frontiersman, Robert Rogers, in the seven years war.

Under Rogers' daring leadership in the campaigns around Lake George in Uppe, New York state those early-day Rangers became known for their courage and endurance— the traits for which their namesakes now are chosen.

Rogers led his men in the Montreal campaign in 1760.

Later Rogers was sent to take possession of the northwestern posts, including what is now Detroit and participated in the battle of Bloody Ridge.

U. S. FLYING GENERAL BACK FROM RAID

Commandos Keep Germans in Fear Since Their Formation Late in 1940

Until Today Heaviest Raid Had Been on German U-Boat Base at St. Nazaire, France.

By The Associated Press

The British commandos, secretly organized in September, 1940, have raided and harassed the Germans from the far northern wastes of Spitsbergen island to the sands of Libya.

The first raid by this tough force of special troops with a name borrowed from the Boer war, was on the Lofoten islands of Norway March 4, 1941, when they blew up oil tanks, captured 215 Germans and liberated 323 Norwegians.

They raided Spitsbergen Sept. 9, 1941, smashing coal mines used by the Germans, freeing 1,000 Norwegians and 2,000 Russian miners. On that occasion they stayed long enough for a Canadian group among them to play—and lose—a football game with some of the Norwegian miners.

It was only last Nov. 15 that the origin and scope of the commandos as a separate force became known with retirement of Admiral Sir Roger Keyes, World war hero who had been training them for 15 months.

Again Dec. 26 the commandos raided the Lofoten islands, and on Dec. 28 struck at the Norwegian islands of Vaagso and Maaloy. Riots all over western Norway resulted and the Germans, despite their scoffing at the effectiveness of such tactics, had to take stern reprisal measures to get the Norwegians under a semblance of control again.

U-Boat Base Hit

The biggest commando raid until the present one at Dieppe was that on the Nazi U-Boat base at St. Nazaire last March 28. The old American destroyer Buchanan, renamed the Campbeltown, was loaded with explosives and blown up in the St. Nazaire dockgate, obliterating it.

The British losses were listed at less than 100 men, their gains the RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 19—All Brazilian soldiers on leave were recalled to duty today and the navy forbade furloughs for regular reserves as this nation at the "gates of war" hastened steps to meet the threats of axis submarines that recently sank five Brazilian coastal ships.

By The Associated Press

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 19—A United States pilot bombed and sank one of the axis submarines lurking off the Brazilian coast after the sinking of five Brazilian ships brought this biggest South American republic to the "gates of war," an official announced today.

The first official word of the sinking came from Commander Ernani A. R. Amaral Peixoto, federal liaison officer in the state of Rio De Janeiro, who told a crowd gathered before the presi-

Germans Report Commando Raid Ends in Debacle

By The Associated Press

BERLIN (FROM GERMAN BROADCASTS) Aug. 19 — The German DNB agency reported tonight that a large scale allied attempt to land on the French coast near Dieppe had ended in debacle and that since this afternoon "there was not a single armed British, American nor Canadian left on the European continent."

More than 1,000 prisoners were taken by German troops, the agency said, and the allied losses in men and materials are "very high and cannot be surveyed."

(The British previously repeatedly had announced that the raid on Dieppe was strictly a commando attack, not an invasion, and that all forces would be withdrawn as soon as their objectives had been attained. So far there has been no British word of the withdrawal except for arrival back in Britain during the afternoon of some of the commandos who already had accomplished their mission.)

DNB said that German coastal artillery participated in the Dieppe fighting and sank numerous British landing boats and that several transports turned back to sea without having accomplished their tasks.

"The attack was 'on a larger scale than previous landing and exceeds the usual proportions of so-called British commando operations,' the Germans said.

DNB reported that several transport ships were sunk or set afire before they reached the coast.

MOP-UP PUSHED IN SOLOMONS

Marines Continue Land Drive While Battle Rages for Control of Sea.

By The Associated Press

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, AUSTRALIA, Aug. 19—The final expulsion of Japan from the Solomon Islands apparently rested today on the completion of two tedious, difficult jobs—the mop-up ashore where the United States marines have landed and the consolidation of naval mastery in that South Pacific zone.

This still was a triple-header operation of major magnitude involving land, sea and air forces, but every indication in the absence of official fact and figure pointed to accumulating successes.

For one thing, the Japanese radio has begun changing its story on the battle and the only reference to it in the latest Tokyo broadcasts was a commentator's warning that the United States onslaughts might lead to further attacks on Japanese-held territory "or even on Japan herself."

A report to Auckland from a New Zealand correspondent somewhere in the South Pacific said the United States has won "sufficient successes" at sea to reinforce and supply the assault troops for what may be weeks or months of "extremely bitter" fighting in the islands.

"Japanese units which were in the Solomons at the opening of operations either have been sunk or have fled to the Caroline islands," said this dispatch to the New Zealand press association.

"American naval forces were reported deployed in anticipation of a showdown battle with the Japanese for the seaways vital to holding or broadening the wedge already dug into the enemy's network of advance island bases.

12 HELD AS GIRL'S BODY FOUND IN CAR

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 19—Seven men and five women were held today for questioning in the sordid beating death of a 28-year-old woman which was revealed by a gun battle that killed an Elyria policeman and Nathaniel Spuriel, Cleveland vice figure.

The 12 captives, including Spuriel's 30-year-old wife, were described by police as his associates in a career which included vice, drugs, thievery and finally homicide.

The three violent deaths climaxed Cleveland's "jitterbug" vice cases in which Spuriel, a Negro, was the convicted key character in the debauchery of four white girls.

Dead, besides Spuriel, were Doris McConnell, 28 and white, recently arrested on a vice charge.

BATTLE RAGES LONG AFTER TROOPS MAKE BOLD NIGHT ATTACK

Americans, British, French, Canadians Strike Hard Blow; Not Second Front, London Says.

BULLETIN

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 19 — Allied commandos were believed still fighting around Dieppe, France, as night approached, and it was made known that the chief objectives of this greatest raid of the war had been achieved.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 19—United States troops with Canadian, British and Fighting French commandos stormed the French coast on the broad beaches around Dieppe at dawn today, and with tanks and the greatest aerial umbrella ever spread aloft fought on throughout the day against the German defenders.

Despite the unprecedented scope of the attack, the British repeatedly announced that the action was not an invasion intended to create a front in western Europe but was only a raid.

This was supported by the return to Britain during the afternoon of some of the commandos who had accomplished their mission speedily.

The main battle roared on, however, and the possibilities inherent in the situation increased as night approached.

1,000 Planes Provide Protection

The constant procession of more than 1,000 United States army, RAF and Royal Canadian air force fighters and bombers from British frontline airdromes to the battle zone in France suggested that, at the least, the great assault might be a test to determine whether such an aerial "big-top" could positively protect a true invasion force all day long.

The planes shuttled to the attack and back for reloading and refueling so quickly that the scene at British airdromes recalled the battle of Britain in the fall of 1940.

Starting at dawn, there never was a break in the procession.

Despite the great concentration of planes, it was reported reliably that no parachutists were used.

The Americans, carefully chosen volunteers called the Rangers, were the first American fighting men to set foot on German-controlled soil in this war and the first to go into action in Europe since 1918.

Hour after hour the battle progressed, with the rumble of heavy gunfire and the constant roar of planes as audible testimony to the scope of the conflict on which allied headquarters issued terse periodic communiques.

Canadians made up the majority of the strong forces that drove across the channel to Dieppe, 50-odd miles from Beachy Head, the nearest point in England, and 100 miles from Paris.

Announcements from United States army and allied combined operations headquarters disclosed that the Americans, British special service troops and the Fighting French all were in action.

The Americans, specially chosen from a host of volunteers as the first American fighting men to set foot on the continent of an embattled Europe since 1917, proudly wore the title "Rangers"—after the famous Rogers' Rangers whose bold exploits made history in the French and Indian war of American colonial days 180 years ago.

First-announced fruits of the raid were destruction of a six-gun German battery and an ammunition dump by troops who landed on the right flank, accomplished their mission and were reembarked by the British navy, which ferried all the forces across to France.

On the left flank the Canadians first were repulsed by strong German opposition, but bounded back to carry the beach by assault while their comrades were pushing tanks ashore in the center for the main thrust, which a noon announcement said still was continuing.

The landings were accomplished at every point selected in advance in a carefully-planned, closely secret operation that American officers of all services helped to arrange.

Scout Second Front Idea

Eagerness to call this a second front, a real invasion, was cooled by repeated BBC broadcasts stressing the "limited and temporary" character of the action and declaring "it had nothing to do with military decisions which have been taken in Moscow recently."

The Germans, however, made no attempt to belittle the scope of the assault, and claimed they had thrown even their naval forces into the bitter conflict.

For the Canadians, thirsting for a fight for months or years, it was the first real action against the enemy.

For the Fighting French, whose commando organization was disclosed only on Bastile day last July 14, it was the first time they have yet foot on the soil of their native land since the German conquest of 1940.

Observers on the British shore said there were more aircraft than ever before seen and heard over the channel, as bombers and fighters shuttled across to assault or reload. Indicating the size of the present operation, it was recalled on at least one previous

(Turn to U. S. TROOPS, Page 5)

Scene of Attack On French Shore West of Strait

By The Associated Press

Dieppe is on the French shore of the English channel a short distance west of the bottleneck Dover strait.

A raid on that section of the coast might be aimed at silencing Nazi long-range coastal batteries, a constant menace to shipping through the channel. These recently have been unusually active and their volume of fire has indicated that they have been reinforced.

Another possibility was that such a raid was a feeler of German coastal defenses as a forerunner of the actual opening of a second land front in continental Europe, or that it sought—as commando raids on the French channel coast have in the past—to knock out anti-aircraft emplacements or radio location stations.

Now that United States and RAF air forces have launched attacks in greater weight on northern France, a break in the Nazi air raid alarm network would be helpful to the allied airmen roaring in from the channel coast.

British Think Americans More Democratic, Special Survey of Opinion Shows

By GEORGE GALLUP

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 19—A comprehensive survey to determine what the British public thinks of Americans, has just been completed by the British Insutiute of Public Opinion. The results, reported in the London "News Cronicle" and passed through British and American censorship, reveal that while the majority of Britishers with opinions have a pro-American attitude, slightly more than one-fourth do not look on Americans with favor or are critical of us.

London commentators, commenting on the survey results, express the view that it is as important to overcome such anti-American sentiment as exists in Britain as it is to overcome whatever anti-British sentiment there is in the United States.

More Britsn like Americans than dislike them, the survey shows. One of the most interesting facts brought to light is that the majority of Britons think the Americans are more democratic than the British.

A large number likewise say that the British would be better off if they were more like the Americans. About one in three, however, thinks that most Americans adopt a superior attitude without any grounds.

There is no disposition among the majority of Britons to believe that Americans are too willing to let others do their fighting. About one in four would agree with that, while 55 per cent deny it — a majority which will undoubtedly increase once American troops get into action in Europe.

WILDERNESS GIRL

By LETA ZOE ADAMS

CHAPTER SEVEN
Quick Action

IN THE next few days Sandy often thought that if he should be forced to enumerate his comings and goings it would be an impossible task. The town on Onha was not large, yet he was certain he covered it from end to end no less than a score of times and that he talked—or made the motions of conversations, — with every second human being in it.

The fact that a certain amount of secrecy must surround his activities complicated every move. Whether the natives had got wind of the purpose of his expedition, or whether their suspicions were easily aroused, at any rate he and Gil found themselves met again and again with head shakes and muttered — "Mala." Mala." Some times the natives would "pass the buck," sending the two Americans on what turned out to be nothing more than a wild-goose chase.

So they perspired through the humid days, washing down their fatigue with limeades.

On the second day they found a Zapotec who claimed to know a servant in the household where Tyra was staying. For a consideration that was unreasonable in view of the work to be done, this fellow agreed to find out when and how Tyra meant to leave Onha.

As unobtrusively as possible Sandy and Gil then began to collect their provisions. Some of the equipment had been brought from Mexico City—three insect-proof pup tents and sleeping bags, tools for their archeological work, medical kit, firearms and other personal belongings. Now they purchased beans and rice, meal, salt. Since the country they were to traverse abounded in tropical fruits, and they hoped, also, in edible game, they expected to round out their diet as they went along.

McIntyre called at the hotel a couple of times during those busy days. He offered a few bits of advice, but admitted that he could not assist in finding natives to penetrate the Forbidden Land. He assumed, without Sandy's telling him, that the two expeditions were traveling together. Sandy did not put him right.

"I want you all to come to the house for dinner the evening before you leave," he told Sandy, at the last visit. "You should have one civilized meal."

Sandy grinned. "Sending the convicted to the gallows on a full stomach! Thanks, we'll be glad to accept that invitation."

Sudden Departure

But they were never to go to the ranch because that same evening, after dark, the Zapotec slipped into the patio and whispered a few words in Sandy's ear that made him jerk up as if pulled by wires.

"Tonight!" he breathed to Gil across the narrow table. "She's going tonight."

Gil was unruffled. "All the better for us. Darkness hides a lot of mischief."

Sandy turned to the Zapotec. "How is she traveling? Canoe?"

"Si, senor. There are two canoes."

"Where does she start from?"

The Indian described the spot. It was at the end of the street where a kind of ferry crossed to the opposite bank of the river.

Sandy leaned across the table to Gil. "We should be not more than an hour behind her. We can throw our stuff together in a hurry."

He spoke to the Indian in Spanish. "You can find us two canoes and have them ready in one-two hours?"

"Si, senor."

Sandy cocked his head. "How about a couple of strong-armed men to man the canoes? Can you fix that, too?"

"To go to the Forbidden Land. No, senor."

Sandy looked at Gil. There you are! What are we going to do? We can't shanghai a crew."

"We need a little exercise," Gil said drawing his mouth down drolly. "We haven't had enough lately in Onha."

Sandy made the final arrangements with the Zapotec and he went off on silent, bare feet. Then they told Helen.

Her face, Sandy thought, went a shade more pale. "So we're off at last."

There was no difficulty in organizing their equipment for Gil and Sandy were old hands at it. In a short time everything was packed and stacked, ready for transporting to the river.

Then Helen called them to supervise her personal luggage. There were three dressing cases of various sizes, a hat box and a rolled wool steamer rug.

"You said to keep it compact," she explained. "This seemed the best I could do. I hope it's satisfactory."

Sandy and Gil exchanged glances. Then Sandy undertook to speak.

"I guess I didn't make it clear what I meant Helen. You can't take any heavy suitcases like these, at all. We're going by canoe for the first leg, at least. We can take only two canoes because we haven't any more man power. They are small native dugouts. They'll be loaded. Gil and I have a duffle bag for our stuff. We'er taking nothing but a couple of changes of the starkest necessities—some soap and razor, toothbrush — a few things like that. You're going to wear what you have on, I presume, linen breeches tucked into boots. All right, I suggest you take a couple of shorts and another pair of shoes—not boots but something like oxfords. When you have everything assembled Gil or I will roll it for you."

'What'll I do?'

She stared helplessly at the men. "But I can't travel without much more than that! You don't know what a woman has to take — creams and lingerie and . . ."

Sandy cut in, with a wry grin. "You can't be a mannequin in bush country, Helen."

"It ain't that kind of country," Gil added. He told Sandy afterward that he believed Helen was nearer, at that moment, to chucking the whole expedition than she'd been at any other time.

She stooped and jerked open one of the suitcases, lifting out a filmy thing that might have been either a nightgown or an evening dress.

"I really need a number of these," she began, then broke off. "Oh, all right. I'll do my best. But I don't know. It's going to be hard."

"You have about twenty minutes," Sandy stated.

"Twenty minutes!"

Sandy nodded. "I've arranged for an ox-cart to call for the stuff. We'll walk."

"But I can't possibly sort out all my things in twenty minutes," Helen remonstrated. her blue eyes growing larger. her voice quavering.

"By chance I can lend a hand," Gil said.

Sandy unstrapped the steamer rug and, with Gil's help, arranged Helen's clothing to make a roll. They placed her oilsilk raincoat on the outside and laid the other garments on it. When they had finished Sandy said:

"Now your toilet articles. They can go in the middle."

Helen handed him half a dozen boxes and jars. He regarded them dubiously but ended by placing them in the roll. She watched until they were half way across the patio with her luggage. Then she flung herself at the ramaining piles and rummaged frantically, whimpering a little.

"What'll I do—what'll I do . . ."

RENT CONTROL BOARD TO QUIT

Ends Service as U. S. Prepares To Send Administrator.

The rent control board today decided to disband.

It pointed out it seemed best to hold another hearing Thursday night, with a federal administrator scheduled to arrive in Marion county eight days later to take full charge of the federal rent control program.

Those in the know say we took the hint.

Common Pleas Judge Paul Young, chairman of the board, said, in commenting on yesterday's announcement in Washington that an administrator would be named for Marion county, the board doesn't feel the appointment of an administrator here is any reflection on the work it has been doing. It regards itself as a temporary organization, its members having anticipated federal control here because of the sharp rise in the area's population and the resultant housing problem.

The board functioned for a month and disposed of several dozen cases. It followed the general pattern of the federal regulations but made adjustments in cases where it did not feel the March 1 "freezing date" rent was fair.

The board concerned itself only with the fairness of rent paid or offered on residences. It is expected the federal administrator will control not only this but eviction cases, rooming houses, hotels and virtually all phases of the war housing problem.

The board members, in addition to Judge Young, are John J. Stafford, Wilson Jones, Lester Adams and Joseph Tanner. They were named by Mayor Snare after he and James E. Reed, county prosecuting attorney, made a study of the rent situation.

For the last two years a grocery clerk here, Benson enlisted several weeks ago as an apprentice seaman. Through a series of aptitude tests given the 130 men of his company, he has been selected to attend one of the navy's service schools. He was graduated in 1940 from Harding High school.

Ziemer, Bromfield on Program of Club Federation

TWO internationally known men, Gregor Ziemer and Louis Bromfield, will be heard on the 1942-43 program of the Marion County Federation of Women's Clubs. Announcement of plans for the program and reports on the auction and rummage sale sponsored by the federation to raise funds for the year's program were made at a pre-season meeting of the executive board of the federation yesterday afternoon in Republican headquarters. The sum of $421.91 was netted in the auction and rummage sale, it was reported.

Just which speaker, Mr. Ziemer or Mr. Bromfield, will open the season in October has not been definitely decided, and this, as well as other details has been left in the hands of the program committee of which Mrs. Harold K. Mouser is chairman.

The talks and other events on the year's program, as in other years, will be open to clubwomen and holders of patroness and patron tickets, free of charge. In keeping with the plan of every clubwoman securing one or more patrons and patronesses this year's attendance promises to be a record-breaker.

Mrs. Carl W. Sawyer, who will serve as president this year, presided for the meeting.

COMMANDOS

crippling of the base for at least a year, naval men said.

Today's radio warnings to the French were intended to prevent a repetition of a tragic phase of the St. Nazaire raid, when French patriots took up hidden weapons and battled the Nazis for days in the belief an invasion had started. Appalling reprisals by the Germans resulted.

Last April Swedish reports said the commandos had blasted German shipping in Narvik, northern Norwegian iron port, but the British never confirmed this.

Shortly thereafter it was announced that Lord Louis Mountbatten, a cousin of the king, had been the new chief of the commandos since March 18, with high rank in the British navy, army and air force so that he could direct readily the activities which the British dryly call "combined operations."

Gets Quick Results

Lord Louis was quick in producing results, with a neat raid on the French coast around Boulogne that caught the Germans napping.

Commandos led the way ashore last May when the British seized the Diego Suarez naval base at Madagascar.

The Germans, belatedly, disclosed about the same time that the weyre organizing a special force to guard against commandos.

Italy nervously rushed to fortify her Riviera coastline against the tough, silent men whose dread landings might occur at any time, at any place.

Promising more and more raids, the allies disclosed that all Canadian forces in Britain were being trained in commando tactics. Six allied nations were represented in commandos. The United States trained thousands of men for such "pioneer" operations.

On June 4 the British commandos again raided the French coast in the Boulogne-Le Touquet area, throwing the Nazis into confusion.

Next day it was disclosed the commandos also had raided Nazi Marshal Rommel's headquarters in North Africa, failing to bag that notable campaigner only because he happened to have been absent. In that raid, the son of Sir Rogers Keyes, the commandos' organizer, was killed, but there was many a prominent Briton to take up the torch, including Randolph Churchill, son of the prime minister, and Lord Lovat, the Scottish peer who led the first Boulogne foray.

So successful were the commando hit-and-run assaults everywhere that it was freely predicted a series of stronger and stronger raids would be the inevitable prelude to allied invasion of the European continent.

ALLEGED BIGAMIST HAS WOMAN HELD

Accuses Companion of Taking His Automobile.

Automobile larceny charges against the feminine companion from whom he allegedly lived in Cleveland have been filed in municipal court by Forest Woodrow Reed, the man accused of bigamy, who languishes in county jail pending possible induction for army service.

Reed named Leota Cloycraft of Union Clermont county, on the automobile brought yesterday in municipal court. He accuses her of taking his automobile and some items of personal property when she left Cleveland following his arrest there early last week.

Marion county authorities instituted a search for Miss Cloycraft by notifying the Clermont county sheriff's department. Word was received here late yesterday that she was taken into custody and Deputy Sheriff Roy Retterer and Elmer Ullom departed for the southern Ohio town this morning.

Reed, who may escape prosecution under his Marion's wife's promise to dismiss the bigamy charge upon his induction for army service, is expected to undergo a preliminary physical examination in the near future. His Marion county draft board forwarded orders for him to submit to a screening test and if successful to report for induction either Aug. 27 or Sept. 5.

U. S. Troops In Raid On France

occasion two fighters participated in a sweep across the channel.

The raid, first announced at 6:5 a. m. (4:45 a. m. Marion time) was still continuing at noon when a supplementary communique was issued.

Fair Day Develops.

After dawn, as the mists burned away and a fine, fair day developed, persons on the British shore still could hear the heartening sounds of offensive battle.

Informed quarters cautioned, however, that for all the broad participation of troops, tanks, naval guns and planes, the raiding forces would be withdrawn when they had achieved their objectives. This was not a second front.

Their objectives were extensive, since it was the first time landing parties had used tanks.

The objectives appeared to be these: to test the enemy's defense organization and to test the allied plans for landing and the RAF ability to cover a big landing force.

Additionally, it was bound to disclose disposition of German troops and equipment in the cross-channel area that once was a vacation resort but now is a nest of Nazi fortifications.

The British radio urgently warned the French public that the raid—strongest of the numerous commando smashes up and down the coasts of Nazi-ruled Europe since March, 1941—was not an invasion.

The French were cautioned not to rise in support of the allies until they should be given the word, lest there be a repetition of the tragic St. Nazaire battle, in which French patriots battled the Nazis for days after British commandos had withdrawn and drew stern reprisals from the Germans.

Specially Selected Troops

The American Rangers, said a United States army bulletin, were "specially selected task troops" chosen "from among an avalanche of volunteers" for commando training in the British Isles.

United States officers, it was announced, are "serving as planners and advisers alongside officers of the British navy, army and royal airforce" on the staff of Lord Louis Mountbatten, supreme chief of the commandos.

These American officers include:

Brig. Gen. K. Truscott Jr., army, of Charlottesville, Va.; Commander E. B. Strauss, navy, of Washington, D. C.; Lieut. Col. H. D. Campbell, marines, of Vermont; Lieut. Col. Loren B. Hillsinger, army air forces, Washington, D. C.; Major T. J. Conway, army, of San Francisco; Major P. M. Hamilton, army air forces, of New York; Major J. B. Lawrence, army, of Los Angeles; Capt. G. W. Embury, army, of Milwaukee, and Lieut. Douglas Fairbanks, navy, of Los Angeles.

Take Tanks Along

Although Canadians made up the majority of the commando force, the fact that Canadians were participating was known at first only to the highest authorities.

The Canadians, after participating in great attack maneuvers, left for the Dieppe raid on Aug. 17, taking their tanks with them.

Landings were made at several selected points in the early darkness of this morning, and the first announcement from headquarters of combined operations (the British term for commando raids) was issued at 8:45 a. m. (1:45 a. m., Marion time).

The late announcement of noon said heavy fighting still was in process.

Especially on the left flank did the Canadians encounter stiff opposition, but their first impulse served as a cloak for the tank-landing operations in the center and they later returned to take the beach.

The royal Canadian air force joined with the RAF in battling strong German resistance to provide a continual roof of protection over the men on the sea and shore.

The roll and rumble of explosions was audible all morning on the English side of the channel while a constant roar of planes was heard overhead.

Paris Radio Silent

Reuters reported that the Paris radio had been off the air since 8:12 a. m., which it said was extremely unusual.

Both before and after daybreak heavy gunfire was heard by residents of the south coast of England, explosions coming from several parts of the French coast, and at one time there was a long and continuous rumble.

RAF fighters were seen streaking back and forth across the channel after dawn, squadrons heading south to France even as other fliers were returning home.

As the action—probably designed to test the strength of German defenses — unfolded, the French people were advised by radio that the operation was not an invasion. They were told to "avoid all action which might compromise their own security." The BBC at noon said the operations in France had "been going on for several hours."

Dieppe, on the channel coast south of Dover Strait and only about 100 miles northwest of Paris, is regarded by British observers as one of the points along the 700 miles of German-occupied coastline from Holland to Brest where a landing might be attempted in the opening of a second front.

Within Fighter Plane Range

It is within easy range of fighter aircraft based in Great Britain but its small harbor has unloading facilities only for small ships and these facilities are not considered adequate for a swift landing of vast quantities of weapons and supplies such as would be required for a big base for a land offensive.

Dieppe was busy with channel passenger and freight traffic in peace time, cross channel boats running to New Haven, England, 80 miles away.

The Germans have set up long-range coastal batteries there to harass channel shipping and these guns probably received some attention from the commandos. The city is only 33 miles from Rouen where United States flying fortresses attacked the railway yards Monday.

Following closely on the visit of Prime Minister Churchill to Moscow, the raid undoubtedly gave the German forces in occupied territory jittery invasion fears.

Today's raid was the first announced by the British since the landing in the Boulogne-Le Touquet area June 4 to test the German defenses there. The commandos completed their work in an hour on that occasion.

MAJOR ACTION SEEN IN MIDDLE EAST ZONE

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 19—Infusion of new brains and new blood on Britain's precarious middle eastern front, coupled with the close attention Prime Minister Churchill gave it on his way to Moscow, stamped that battle theater in many British minds today as a zone of impending major action.

North Africa might become the United Nations' second front. With only a thin 80 miles separating his armies from Alexandria, Hitler scarcely could neglect that arm of his vast Middle Eastern pincer if his goal is to master the trans-Caucasus by winter.

Britons, therefore, weighed these developments with some optimism and some anxiety.

1. Churchill's stop-over in Egypt enroute to his talks with Joseph Stalin, during which he inspected the front and met virtually the whole "Who's Who" of the United Nations leadership in North Africa.

2. The announcement that General Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander had been called to command in the Middle East in place of General Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck.

3. The arrival in Egypt of new United States contingents, including ground staffs for the American army air forces whose medium and heavy bombers already are in action and whose fighter planes have completed their last desert training.

Cecil H. Bowman, 27, of Iberia told police his car was damaged slightly in a collision at Center and Main streets early last night. He did not learn the name of the driver of the other car.

134 Ohio Motorists on New Tire Blacklist

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 19—Supt. Lynn Black of the state highway patrol said today 134 Ohio motorists had been "blacklisted" for new tires during the first five days of the patrol's campaign to conserve rubber.

The patrol obtains the identity of anyone driving more than 40 miles an hour and the names are turned over to the office of price administrator. Any persons "blacklisted" will be denied new tires or re-caps if and when they again are offered the public.

POST WAR YEARS FEARED BY DAVIS

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 — A warning that industry could not survive post-war years without drastic revision of business levies in the proposed new tax bill came today from Senator Davis (R-Pa).

He said the senate finance committee of which he is a member must change the house approach or let the nation "face defeat on this important front," as vital to victory as arms and men.

Davis's formal statement appeared as Chairman Clark (D-Mo) called a finance subcommittee back into executive session to continue its study of the income tax withholding program in the house bill.

Beardsley Ruml, treasurer of R. H. Macy Co., Inc., and chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, was asked to tell Clark's group more about his pay-as-you-go income tax proposal which would put tax collections on a current basis by making next year's payments apply on 1943 instead of 1942, income. Under this plan, 1942 would be skipped.

Davis said Pennsylvania's steel, coal and oil industries, geared to full war production, feared the effects of the house bill on future lean years.

The house bill, he declared, would allow heavy industry to earn only 3 or 3½ per cent.

STIMSON ORDERED TO SEIZE FACTORY

War Secretary Directed To Act Against Boston Plant.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 — President Roosevelt ordered Secretary of War Stimson today to take possession of and operate the plant of the S. A. Woods Machine Co. at South Boston, Mass., where a management-labor dispute has impeded war production.

The war labor board has the case before him yesterday for appropriate action.

The company management has refused to comply with a board order that it grant arbitration and maintenance of union membership privileges to the CIO's united electrical, radio and machine workers.

The plant has orders for production important to the war effort.

It was the second time within a week and the seventh time during the current national emergency that the government had exercised its power to take over a private industry.

Last Friday the President ordered the navy to seize the plant of the General Cable Corp. at Bayonne, N. J., after the employes struck in protest against a labor board decision against their demands for a wage increase.

At Pittsburgh, committeemen of the CIO Aluminum Workers' Union gathered to discuss a report of their president that union members were urging a general strike in the war-essential aluminum industry. They were described by their leader as displeased with a WLB decision which denied them a wage increase on the grounds they already had been given an increase of more than 15 per cent since Jan. 1, 1941.

AMATEUR

Ruth Botkin and Lois Wurdeman were nominated previously.

All To Compete

George Baun, a Hunkin-Conkey employe who is general chairman of the Amateur Day arrangements, said all five girls will still be in the contest.

He added that his primary interest was raising funds to rehabilitate Marion's park system, and, he added, every vote means one more penny towards the $2,500 goal.

Nomination by Huber employes of Miss Snyder splits the city of Marion vote between her and Miss Phyliss Hecker, a Marion Reserve Power Co. employe whose candidacy was announced yesterday. Balloting in the contest will end Saturday at 9 p. m. The girl leading the poll will reign as queen Sunday at Lincoln park during Marion's first Amateur Day.

A meeting will be held tonight at 8 in County Treasurer Marion Hinklin's office to outline late developments in the Amateur Day program. Hinklin is temporary chairman of the county defense recreation committee.

Morrow Co. Court Aids Recruiting for U. S. Army

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, Aug. 19—Morrow county's jail has become an unofficial recruiting station for Uncle Sam's fighting forces. More than a dozen prisoners, serving sentences on minor charges, have been released during the past month to join the army.

"It'll do them good," commented Common Pleas Judge P. H. Wieland in outlining the policy. It serves a double purpose in shuttling the eligible prisoners to the Ft. Hayes induction center and keeping the jail population at a minimum.

"If the army will take them their sentences are suspended," Judge Wieland stated, adding that in the event they are rejected, "they go back to jail." Such suspensions are not granted to prisoners considered "vicious," according to Judge Wieland.

Latest of the potential army material recruited from the Morrow county jail was a quartet of prisoners that departed this morning with a group of inductees. They are Robert Simpson, Harry Hedrick, Francis Grinnell and Carl Davis. It was reported from Sheriff Oscar George's office.

Earlier this week John Ogle of Mt. Gilead was released and taken to Ft. Hayes by Sheriff George.

U. S. PLANE

dential palace that one of the undersea raiders had been destroyed.

Government press department and other accounts in Brazilian newspaper, gave this version of the attack:

The submarine was sighted 50 miles off Brazil's coast by a United State plane piloted by Capt. Jack Lacey. The plane dived, machine-gunning the submarine and forcing it to the surface with bombs when it attempted to submerge.

The Diario Carioca, quoting authorized sources, said the submarine apparently was damaged in this first attack. The United States plane dived again, this time finishing the submarine with direct bomb hits.

Meanwhile, a naval spokesman said that an axis surface raider prowling the South Atlantic has been sighted near the Brazilian island of Trindale, 1,000 miles off the coast several days ago.

Throughout the country, in fervent demonstrations, Brazilians called upon the government to avenge the affront to Brazil's honor and the apparent loss of several hundred lives, including those of women and children, in the recent wave of ship losses.

U. S. SUB SINKS JAP SHIP IN ALEUTIANS

Cruiser or Destroyer Is Sent Down; Toll Now 23.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19—A United States submarine has sunk a Japanese cruiser or destroyer in the western Aleutians, the navy announced today, bringing to 23 the total of enemy ships announced as sunk or damaged in that area.

The navy said that conditions made it impossible to determine an exact identification of the ship destroyed.

The sinking was announced in navy department communique No. 108, which follows:

"North Pacific area.

"1. A United States submarine has reported the sinking of a Japanese cruiser or destroyer in the western Aleutian area. Conditions made impossible an exact identification of the type of ship.

"2. This sinking has not been announced in any previous army department communique."

GUN BATTLE

and Patrolman Howard Taft of the Elyria police department.

Miss McConnell's nude and battered body was found stuffed into the trunk compartment of Spuriel's coupe when Patrolman Taft and a partner investigated an Elyria traffic collision involving the coupe last night.

Dr. S. C. Ward, Lorain county coroner, said the woman had been "badly beaten" from eight to 20 hours earlier, perhaps with a whip.

Detective Sergeant Martin P. Cooney, chief of the homicide squad, said Spuriel and Miss McConnell had apparently quarreled in the rooms over Spuriel's Cleveland night club and later at a house operated by Spuriel.

Spuriel was one of 12 men sentenced last April in the "jitterbug" cases, which involved teenage white girls, frequenters of Negro night clubs.

Served Two Days

He served two days of a nine-month sentence, then was released because of an appeal from the conviction. On June 9 he and Miss McConnell were arrested along with another white woman, identified as Spuriel's wife, on charges of occupying and operating a vice resort. The cases were to have been heard next Friday.

The Cleveland vice figure opened fire on Patrolman Taft as he was being taken to the Elyria police headquarters last night after his car was involved in a collision with another, operated by an Elyria woman.

Patrolman Don Andress, who was being taken to his home by Taft when the latter was directed to investigate the collision, gave this account of the shootings:

Taft started to drive Spuriel's car to police headquarters, with Spuriel beside him, while Andress followed in the police cruiser. After driving a short way, Taft stopped to straighten a fender damaged in the collision. Spuriel also got out and took the ignition key.

Starts Shooting

Refusing at first to surrender the key, Spuriel then walked to the car as if to get in, but pulled a .45 caliber revolver from the automobile and fired three shots into Taft's chest and stomach. Falling to the street, Taft returned fire, emptying all six chambers of his service revolver.

Andress, unarmed, ran to the other side of Spuriel's car to grab him from behind. One shot fired at Andress missed, and the Negro was killed outright by Taft's bullets. Andress then took Taft to the hospital where he died an hour and a half later.

The slain patrolman, married and father of one child, had been a member of the police department since last Nov. 15.

Discovering of Miss McConnell's body was made after Spuriel's car was taken to police headquarters. Coroner Ward said death resulted from a brain hemorrhage caused by a severe beating.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 19, 1942

For the Oh Shucks Dept.

IT FAILS to be plain out in this part of the country why President Roosevelt, presumably the world's busiest man, found time to meddle in New York state politics during the recent primary. Now that reports are hinting that the upshot of the meddling is going to be a rebuke to Mr. Roosevelt and a boost in the political prestige of James A. Farley it isn't plain why that's important either.

Outside New York state and the ingrown political circles where nothing else is important, no one gives a whoop who gets the Democratic nomination for governor of New York. It has no possible bearing on anything connected with the only important thing before the country right now—the better conduct of the war effort. The people as a whole are not interested in the political manipulations going on in any one state.

Consequently, the President's prestige isn't going to suffer a bit west of the Hudson river—unless it continues to appear that he is so interested in fighting with James A. Farley that he is stealing time from fighting with Germany, Japan and Italy to pursue his political hobby. In that event, even Mr. Roosevelt's stranglehold on popularity would be loosened.

Part Score

THE extreme difficulty of scoring a war that ranges over thousands of miles of land and water has prevented all but a few clear pictures. When Great Britain broke Germany's bid for control of the air between early autumn in 1940 and the autumn of 1941, it could be estimated with reasonable accuracy that Germany had lost upward of 16,000 planes to Britain's 3,000. That was a clear picture leaving no doubt of Germany's reason for abandoning what had proved to be an exorbitantly costly attempt to win an aerial battle.

Figures just released by Lieut. Gen. Henry H. Arnold comprise a comparably clear picture of aerial warfare between the United States and Japan. Without including enemy planes destroyed on the ground, Gen. Arnold says that 190 Japanese units were shot down, with a loss of 104 American planes. At the same time it is announced officially that the sensational record of the "Flying Tigers," American volunteer group fighting for China, was 218 Japanese planes against 84 American losses before the force was disbanded.

There is no tendency any more to under-rate the Japanese as air fighters, but the statistics indicate that whenever American airmen can meet them on even terms the advantage lies on the American side.

India Is Not a Theory

AMERICAN interest in India long ago ceased to be that of onlookers watching political turmoil from a distance India is one of the fronts in the war. American soldiers and equipment are there to try to offset whatever plans the Axis may put into effect. The state of India is not a debating problem, but one of the grim facts of World war II.

Great Britain has the primary responsibility for keeping India safe for the United Nations Insofar as the United Nations can be said to have existence as a coalition founded on certain principles, Britain's allies have a right to expect that British officials will do nothing to injure their common interests in India.

The situation is touchy and obviously dangerous for all concerned. The most that Americans may hope for is that the British, with years of experience as administrators of the affairs of India, know what they are doing. It is impossible now to undo what has been done, or to accomplish any sudden change for the better. Great Britain and its allies must stand or fall on things as they are.

India, which was to have been an asset, may become a liability in the effort of the United Nations to win the war. Not only the British, but the Chinese, the Russians and Americans are vitally concerned. They are not concerned now with the fate of individuals in India, but only with their common fate, including that of all Indians. There is no pity to be wasted on the Gandhis.

World War II Will Do

ATTEMPTS to pin some fancy name on the war continue, but the odds are lengthening. The longer the war lasts the clearer it becomes that World war II can't be improved on.

This is a continuation of the war that was precipitated by an outbreak of aggression and blood lust in 1914. Its instigator and prime mover is the same nation. The nation to be forced back into bounds is still Germany, which never admitted that it should have got what was coming to it before and—what is more important—never did get what was coming to it.

Since then, the German militarists have picked up a convert in Asia, the streamlined samurai of Japan, but otherwise things are the same. It's still the war to determine whether arrogance and oppression are going to be dominant, or whether Christian principles are going to be dominant. There couldn't be a better title than World war II, and the next time the issue leads to bloodshed the result might as well be called World war III.

News Behind the News

Russian Situation Regarded Discouraging But Far from Disastrous.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 — The Russian situation does not look too bad. It is dangerous, discouraging yet far from disastrous, so far.

Events are shaping up toward a winter battle line in the south, running roughly along the top of the Caucasus mountains, across the vital oil regions. This would mean that the Reds may keep the richest and the best of the oil producing area, south of those mountains, out of Nazi hands for another winter.

If they can hold the Baku area, where more than 50 per cent of all Russian oil has been produced, they will not consider this a very unsuccessful campaign, when measured against their advance hopes.

Hitler has seized the Maikop fields, and no doubt soon will get Grozny, on the northern side of the mountain range. The Reds have announced that the Maikop wells have been "destroyed," which only means that it will probably take Hitler six months to restore the production system and get oil from them.

No doubht the Reds will similarly "destroy" the Grozny producing area now at Hitler's reaching finger-tips.

If they can hold the excellent natural barrier of the protecting Baku mountains, it may not do them much good, as far as supplying their own oil needs, but they will at least keep this vital prize from the Nazis. Their home supply has been estimated as sufficient to carry them through the winter.

The Black Sea will be lost to them but they have some shipping in the Caspian, which will enable them to communicate with the main front. It would be too dangerous a route, and cannot be freely used, but we can get some supplies and planes in to them through Iran. Furthermore, there is at least one arms factory behind that line.

The most decisive action on this front therefore is yet to be determined, and the Russian cause is not without hope. The army of the southern Commander Timoshenko, is still intact, has merely been retreating, and not attempting to make a major stand north of the mountains, and therefore should be able to do this job which is cut out for it

Winter Close

Winter should start closing down on the northern front, above the parallel of Moscow, within 10 days. Snow there generally starts around Labor day.

A heavy rainy season, which will impede mechanical activities generally, sets in south of Moscow about the latter part of September and October, and continues in varying degrees until winter hardens the terrain.

On this central front, the Russians are assuming a defensive position, which they hope to maintain through the winter, along the excellent natural line of the Volga and part of the Don.

Hitler has just started some unexpected offensive thrusts around Voronezh to break this Don line in the center. He may soon go hard after Leningrad and Moscow again, but so far, north of Voronezh neither side has had enough strength to make any appreciable dent in the other.

The layout of the whole front now is such that the Reds could lose both Leningrad and Moscow and not have to give in—if they can hold the Caucasus mountains and the Volga-Don line.

If Hitler fails to get Stalingrad he will no doubt cut southeastward, along the east bank of the Volga to Astrakhan, but no one expects him to go across the deep, safe line of that mighty river before the snow flies there, also.

Red Food Problem

Food may become Stalin's worst enemy this winter. Unprecedented bumper crops have been raised this summer in all unoccupied areas of Russia, but the total volume of the production naturally falls far short of making up the loss of the rich Ukraine fields to the Germans. True also, we cannot hope to get much in to them. Murmansk, off the Arctic ocean is an ice-free port throughout the winter, but German bombings, and the traffic jams on the single railroad southward to Moscow, have made it an inadequate base. No others are useable to any great extent.

Japs May Strike

Nothing has been reported concerning Japanese intentions in Siberia since they concentrated heavy forces on the Manchukuo border a month ago. They may strike at any minute, and close that Pacific port, which has not been of great use anyway, in view of the long railroad haul from there to the European battlefront.

If coming events of the battle during the next few weeks will only bear out these modest hopes, you will find the summer campaign has not really developed much beyond what was expected and prophesied last spring in this spot, namely, that the Nazis would get a lot more territory but would not get the Russian armies.

Atlantic City War Camp

"World's Playground" Now Overrun with Soldiers and Sailors.

BY W. F. CARTER

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 19 — (Wide World) — This seashore resort, which calls itself "the world's playground," is a war camp now in one of the most dramatic economic upsets ever experienced by an American city.

Just a few weeks ago Atlantic City, headquarters for bathing beauties, salt water taffy and spectacular politics, thought it might escape any stringent effects of the war. Now it is filled with soldiers and sailors.

There are still thousands of rooms for rent in this city. The ocean is still here, so is the boardwalk, the clean white sand, the gentle breezes. Atlantic City still advertises in out-of-town newspapers that vacationers are most welcome.

But the city's largest hotels have been taken over by army and navy trainees, thousands of hotel workers have had to hunt other jobs.

Men who have served on Atlantic City's famous life guard crew for more than 10 years say crowds of bathers on the beaches this year are the smallest they have ever seen Sunday crowds are no larger than those of ordinary weekdays last year.

Conventions Gone

Conventioneers are gone, too, for the duration And they spent an average of $14 75 a day each .

There has been some rather strong feeling about the situation. Nobody blames the army. It's just that local people didn't count on anything like this. But they had warnings:

First there was talk of rubber shortage and gasoline rationing. That should have meant something, because 85 per cent of seashore visitors travel by automobile.

Next came the news that war industries would do away with vacations because men couldn't be spared.

The strongest hint came when the army air force took over Miami Beach hotels, but that, too, went unheeded.

Then U. S. Senator William H. Smathers (D-NJ) announced, just as the summer season began, that the army would take over the principal hotels for the duration.

Since then things have been happening fast. Hotel guests ousted by the army move to another hotel next door, only to be ousted again in a few days. Hotel workers move from job to job as the army moves in, and finally have to leave town.

1,500 Families To Leave

Adrian Phillips, promotion manager of the Atlantic City Hotel association, calculated at least 1,500 families of workers would have to leave the city.

Even so many business leaders privately see a gleam of light These men claim the town was a "dead duck" anyway because of transportation shortage and that the army and navy payrolls will keep the town on even keel the year-round.

Atlantic City is on an island—Abeseon island. It is separated from the mainland by six miles of salt marshes. Here in a compact little setting isolated behind South Jersey's swamps, scrub pines and berry patches, 110,000 persons with "sand in their shoes" have made a life occupation of catering to vacation whims.

All this nurtured a screwy sort of economy aptly described as "two months of hurry and ten months of worry."

Backtown vs. Boardwalk

One hotel owner, who refused to permit use of his name, said recently:

"For years politicians have pitted the backtown sections against the boardwalk. The backtown people wouldn't do anything to help us improve our city. When we passed the hat for money to improve the town they refused to contribute. They sneered, 'Oh, that's for the boardwalks benefit—the hell with it.'

"Now that the army has changed things, some of these backtown people are crying on our shoulders They are beginning to realize at last how important the boardwalk has been to them all along, and how much they depended on it."

Meanwhile the city plans to continue its famous national bathing beauty contests, despite many obstacles. The convention hall has been taken over by the army, so this year's contest, Sept. 5 to 12, will be held in a boardwalk theater.

The soldier may come and go, but the bathing beauty is here to stay.

Loveliness

LET'S HAVE THE BAD NEWS TOO!

Looking To Our Weapons

They Must Be Better Than the Enemy's.

DON'T forget there are two sides to the argument about whether our planes, tanks, guns etc. are better or worse than the enemy's.

Keeping abreast or two jumps ahead of the other fellow in weapons is one of the toughest problems in fighting a modern war. Weapons considered "advanced" in 1940 and 1941 are now obsolete, or getting that way. Since Pearl Harbor, the United States has standardized on nearly 150 new models of weapons and pieces of equipment.

The speed with which new models of weapons are adopted is accelerated in wartime, and there is this to remember: In spite of all past stupidities, our military forces won't insist on yesterday's weapons when today's have been proved superior on the fields of battle.

The new round helmet is a case in point. For six years the army experimented with designs to improve the flat British-designed tin hat that was standard in the last war. The experiments led not here, but shortly after war began the answer was found in the new double helmet, similar in general outline to the German helmet, but better in the that it has the light weight fiber inner helmet that can be worn back of the lines.

Japan's Zero fighting plane is another example. United States equipment, according to some critics, is unable to keep pace with the Zero. But the fact is that in equal engagements where U. S. fighters have been engaged, the Zeros haven't looked so good. Latest word is that they have been "improved," which means they have been armored to put them abreast of our planes. The speed and maneuverability that made them "superior" have been sacrificed to the security that made United States planes "superior" in Japanese opinion.

Making over the M-3 medium tank into the M-4 was perhaps the most spectacular of all the ordnance conversions and modernization jobs. More than $53,000,000 was spent in plant facilities alone to make this change, but it was worth it. The new M-4 tank with its cast and forged turret replacing the old rivet job, is unquestionably the fastest, the best armored and the heaviest hitting medium tank on any front today.

On Schedule

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — It was one of those things which just couldn't happen — but did. Ann Yates, 8-year-old daughter of Tom Yates, a Chattanooga stock breeder, had been promised a horse to raise and train as her very own. The next foal of Lady Jane, a brood mare, was to be hers. Lady Jane's foaling time and Ann's birthday were approaching — so Ann thought it would be wonderful if the colt were born on her birthday. Her parents conceded it was possible though not probable. Ann went down to the pasture and took it up with Lady Jane. Then she included the request in her prayers. The day came, Ann was eight and sure enough, Lady Jane's foal was born that morning. The colt's name? Happy Birthday, of course.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — "There never was a trout any smarter than old Aristotle."

That's a fisherman talking—one who chose to spend his vacation tackling Aristotle rather than trout.

For that's how Clayton H Whitman, Shreveport, La., oilman, sums up the vacation he and 13 other persons spent attending the St. John's college summer seminar, exploring the works of such B.C. contemporaries as Aeschylus, Sophocles, Plato, Thucydides, Aristotle, Homer and Plutarch.

The group, its members ranging from 17 to 52 years old, included two housewives and a nun. They came just for what they could get out of the seminar, which included picking grammatical constructions apart, lectures, and figuring out what Aristotle and Company were talking about.

Mr. Chips in Traffic

BALTIMORE—Tip to tourists: You'll make out fine in Baltimore traffic with a horse and buggy.

After a motorist complained that traffic lights were synchronized for a horse and buggy, the Baltimore Evening Sun hired a horse (Mr. Chips), a buggy, and sent a liveryman and reporter out to investigate.

Jogging along at 6 miles an hour, Mr. Chips ambled up and down three main thoroughfares, stopping for nary a light.

Automobiles whisked by him, but Mr. Chips often pulled abreast at the next traffic light. Despite Mr. Chips, police insisted the lights were synchronized for a brisk 18-miles per hour.

Only One Legion

New Generation of Veterans Will Have Own Organization When World War II Is Ended.

By DAMON RUNYON

SOME OF my American Legion friends are now inclined to doubt that their organization will ever admit veterans of this war, holding that the difference of at least 25 years in age, but more important, the difference in the point of view, precludes the possibility of the two generations having anything in common.

However, it is certain that the question will be hotly debated at the national convention of the Legion in Kansas City Sept. 19-21, which will probably be the tamest in the Legion's history. The lads were in Kansas City for the third convention 21 years ago when prohibition was in its early stages and they practically set the Missouri river afire.

This time the attendance is not likely to exceed four or five thousand. There will be no parade and little if any of the usual reunion rejoicing. It will all be serious business. Legion conventions in the past have attracted enormous crowds. The parade in New York a few years ago lasted 19 hours.

FOR AWHILE many of the Legionnaires rather favored admitting the men and women in this war, but that sentiment seems to have died down. I say women, because there will soon be 50,000 in the army and 25,000 in the navy. Out of the last war the Legion drew from the army nurses, the navy yeomanettes and the marine marionettes, but there were only about 35,000 of them in all.

Disabled Veterans of the World War are taking steps to admit the men of this war qualified by disability for membership in the organization. Veterans of Foreign Wars have opened their doors to the newcomers.

It seems improbable that the Legion will follow suit for awhile, however. The final result will probably be a new organization for the youngsters along the lines of the Legion.

There are now 110,000 of the 1,010,000 members of the Legion back in the service, and there are 300,000 sons and other relatives of Legionnaires under arms. I have just received a letter advising me that one of the Legionnaires who have gone back is Salvatore Augustine Cappodice of Hollywood, Calif., who perfectly reflects the spirit of the Legion about as well as any other man alive.

"CAPPY" was born on the south side of Chicago 48 years ago and enlisted in the Sixth marines as soon as the United States entered the last war. He lost a leg in the Battle of Belleau Wood and received total disability compensation of $135 from the government, which, with his war insurance, gave him an income of $192.50 a month for life.

He entered the automobile business in southern California and became active in the Legion, of which he is a past national vice commander. He helped build up for the famous Hollywood post the boxing enterprise that has made it one of the riches posts in the country. But he could not stand hitched after he got in this way.

He secured special permission from Washington to re-enlist in the marines despite his disability and is now a sergeant under the celebrated Major James Schwerin, who has 38 years of marine service behind him. "Cappy" is engaged in recruiting work. He had to waive compensation when he re-enlisted. He will never get it back. But "Cappy" does not need it. He is in uniform again.

Japs and Giant Rats

Japanese are not the only hostile forces on Guadalcanal Island in the Solomons, says National Geography society. Rats as big as cats are there, too.

To neutralize the effect of these enemies, invading marines will find color in cockatoo parrots and other tropical birds in the Guadalcanal forests.

Guadalcanal is one of the larger of the Solomon islands that spread 900 miles over the Pacific. Shaped like a fat crawling caterpillar, about the size of the state of Delaware, the island is about 25 miles south of Tulagi, center of extensive United States-Japanese naval operations.

Mountains rising to 8,000 feet form the backbone of Guadalcanal. Broad plains sweep down to their bases to the sea. On these plains the Japanese were constructing airplane fields with the aid of native labor.

The Melanesians who inhabit the island have resisted colonization. Explorers found its dense forests heavily peopled. But tropical fevers have taken a heavy toll and recent censuses show a gradual lessening of population.

Natives of the interior live in small villages of thatched bamboo huts in clearings in the forests. Each has his vegetable garden. No fertilizer is practically unknown, new garden patches are sought when old ones are worn out.

The rumor that colonized the Solomons was left by settlers to Guadalcanal. When an early Spanish expedition, which visited the archipelago, returned home to interest colonizers in the islands, a rumor "leaked" from the expedition that from the islands adorned the famous Solomon Temple at Jerusalem. Thus the name for the Solomon group.

Coconuts, not gold, ultimately developed Guadalcanal. For 40 years coconuts have been the main source of revenue there. An English soap manufacturing concern established plantations to provide coconut oil for soap making. Before the present war 15,000 acres of the island were in coconuts, which produce nearly 20,000 tons.

Doughboys Making Movie in Ireland

By The Associated Press

BELFAST—Three doughboys have starring parts in a movie which is on production in Northern Ireland. The story is the United States army there, the title "A Letter Home," and the stars are Sergeant Don Prill, twenty-year-old student from Minneapolis, Private Wally Schofield, of Minneapolis, and Corporal Billy Wareham, of Duluth, Minn., who was a policeman in private life.

The film is for release in the United States only, and is largely possible because of the army's full cooperation. At one large camp housing the regiment of artillery, the entire current was cut off at nights to supply power in the big concert scene.

Another doughboy figuring in the film is Class Private Kenneth Wong, from Minnesota. Sequence in which he was shown reading a letter from his best girl was "shot" half a dozen times. Wong said: "I'll have the first letter worn reading it so often, but it beats guard duty." (Modern slang for a fast route march.)

Tin Mine in California

By The Associated Press

RIVERSIDE, Calif.—A promise to show the government officials an actual bar of tin refined from the Temescal mine, 55 miles east of Los Angeles, has been made by Walter Rubel, county supervisor. With America's principal source of the strategic metal cut off with the fall of Malaya, the government is relying on claimed tin and ore from Bolivia. The board of side supervisors thought well enough of the Temescal source to appropriate funds for the mining of 100 tons of ore in a metallurgical laboratory.

...of the 167 plants to be ...ed are in Ohio. In addi... tion to those in Akron and neighboring communities, other Ohio companies to be reached during the drive include Buckeye Rubber Producing Co. and the Iuma Cord Sole & Heel Co., Lima; Faultless Rubber Co., Ashland; St. Marys Manufacturing Co., St. Marys; Pretty-Schaffer Company, Coshocton; Aetna Rubber Co., Cleveland; Cincinnati Rubber Co., Norwood; Master Tire & Rubber Corp., Findlay; Ohio Rubber Co., Willoughby; Pharis Tire & Rubber Co., Newark; Bowling Green Rubber Co., Toledo; Republic Rubber Co., Youngstown; Dayton Rubber Mfg. Co., Dayton; Inland Mfg. Co., Dayton; Premier Rubber Co., Garretsville; Pyramid Rubber Co., Ravenna; Mansfield Rubber Co., Mansfield; Denman Cord Tire & Rubber Co., Warren.

National headquarters for the campaign have been established in Akron, the center of the rubber industry, according to Mr. Traunstine.

In a telegram to the heads of the plants and the presidents of the local rubber unions, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau expressed his gratification that the war bond drive is being conducted through the joint efforts of both management and labor.

"We at the treasury department are regarding this joint labor-management war bond drive in your industry with unusually keen interest, for its success will be most valuable in establishing the pattern of similar drives in other industries," The Secretary said. "This nation-wide campaign offers renewed opportunities to do the job so urgently needed by your country and to show that the rubber industry has the qualities of leadership so necessary to any successful campaign."

Slogan Adopted

Under the slogan "Banged Together to Bong-Bard the Axis", the industry and the rubber workers' union have established this two-fold objective: "All-out for 100 per cent war bond participation, and all-in for 10 per cent of payroll."

The basis for the campaign is a labor-management agreement establishing a Labor-Management War Bond committee in each plant. This war bond contract, and many other features of the drive were originated by Frank Grillo, secretary-treasurer of the URAW, and director of the union's nationwide war bond drive, in consultation with leaders of management and labor in the rubber and allied industries.

Among the firms which have helped to develop ideas for the nation-wide War Bond drive, are the General Tire & Rubber Co., B. F. Goodrich Tire & Rubber Co., Mohawk Rubber Co., Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., Seiberling Rubber Co., Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., and the U. S. Rubber Co.

While the immediate campaign in the rubber and allied industries will wind up on Sept. 14, the labor-management war bond agreement provides for continuing joint committees to remain in effect "as long as the U. S. Treasury Department shall deem necessary."

New Book Hails Principles Of OWU Conference

Principles laid down at a conference of representative groups of Christian churches at Ohio Wesleyan university in Delaware several months ago may become a "possible Magna Charta for the new constructive and peace plan which is placed before the whole Christian world."

This is the view expressed by Dr. Adolph Keller of Switzerland whose book, "Christian Europe Today," is being published today by Harper & Brothers.

The Delaware conference to which the book refers brought outstanding churchmen from all parts of the world to Ohio Wesleyan for a prolonged study of fundamental church problems, including a study of the church's responsibility both in the present crisis and in the peace that will follow.

Far-Reaching Application

"The application of the Delaware Principles to the political and economic field are very far-reaching," Dr. Keller declares in his book. "The political points not only anticipate a new cooperation of America with the rest of the world, but in a very concrete way they point out that America must make the first efforts for the re-establishment of order after war. Arrangements must be made for the restoration of stable government and economic activity . . . There must be made no punitive reparations, no arbitrary dismemberment of nations. In the application of the guiding principles to the economic world the Delaware conference has a vision of fellowship in an ever wider spiritual world. The Delaware conference shows that America is preparing to make a special contribution of the first magnitude toward the Christianity of the future," he writes.

"If American Christianity takes the lead in this way in the task of healing the wounds of war and bringing the world together in a just and durable peace, America will have to tackle one of the biggest tasks in history in a re-orientation toward Christ and with a worldwide vision," Dr. Keller declares.

Not a "Blue Print" Job

"Rebuilding the church and a new world order" Dr. Keller believes "cannot come from blue prints or organizational efforts, but rather from a spiritual deepening of our life." Not only will Christianity survive its present trial by fire, but it will be strengthened thereby, he feels.

Dr. Keller is professor at the Universities of Geneva and Zurich, Switzerland. He has traveled extensively as a member of the National Preaching Mission in 1941, the Ohio meetings of which were held in Cleveland.

13 Babies Coming And No Doctor in N. J. Town

By The Associated Press

WEST MILFORD, N. J., Aug. 19—Sir Stork was facing obstacles in this hamlet today.

With more than 13 babies due in the next few weeks, the only physician in the township has been commissioned in the U. S. army medical corps and is to leave for active service.

Miss Helen Manetas, registered nurse employed jointly by the board of education and the board of health said there were 13 babies expected when school closed and that there probably were more now.

Township Clerk Walter F. Teshune said he had received six letters from physicians interested in taking Dr. Geiger's place.

Drew Field Private Wins Bride from MacDill Officer

By The Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 19—Rivalry between the army's Drew and MacDill fields here has been heightened a bit by this:

A Drew field private struck up an acquaintance with a girl on a Tampa bound bus, found she was headed for Tampa to marry a MacDill field first lieutenant.

In a swift-rolling romance, he won her away from the officer and they were married two days after reaching Tampa.

Meantime, she had failed in her efforts to communicate her change of heart to the lieutenant and he reported her missing and enlisted police aid.

A reporters' check of marriage license records set the lieutenant straight. So he called on the newlyweds, retrieved his engagement ring and withdrew as gracefully as possible.

St. Louis Cardinals Threaten Brooklyn's Domination in National League

Slash Three Games off Dodger Lead in Last Three Days; Brooks in Front by 6½ Games.

By The Associated Press

After nearly everybody except their relatives had given them up for lost, the St. Louis Cardinals are threatening to make a race of the National league pennant drive.

They still trail the front-running Brooklyn Dodgers by six and a half lengths, but they have knocked three full games off the Dodger lead in the last three days.

With southpaw Max Lanier hurling seven-hit shutout ball, the Cards ran their latest winning streak to five straight last night by beating the Chicago Cubs and Claude Passeau, 5-0.

The Dodgers were jolted 3-1 by the Phils, the second straight for the Brooks, who have lost five of their last 10 games. The Cardinals have won 10 of their last 12.

Carl Hubbell pitched the New York Giants to a 10-2 triumph over the Boston Braves yesterday as his boss, Mel Ott, chipped in with his 21st home run and took over the leadership of the league.

The Pittsburgh Pirates dropped Cincinnati five games behind the Giants by whitewashing the Reds, 3-0 in a night contest.

In the American league, the Boston Red Sox ran their winning streak to five games by edging the New York Yankees, 8-7 in 10 innings.

Denny Galehouse turned in a seven-hit shutout in a night contest as the St. Louis Browns whipped the Chicago White Sox, 7-0, and climbed to within a single game of the third-place Cleveland Indians, who were idle.

The Washington Senators came from behind to trip the Philadelphia Athletics, 2-1, in another arc light tilt.

The Cleveland Indians' anemic batting punch has upset their pitchers' schedules.

"Pitching in turn is out," says Manager Lou Boudreau. "For the rest of the season, no pitcher on the staff will start a game simply because it's his turn to work.

"That's no reflection on the pitchers, but exactly the opposite. Our pitchers represent just about our only hope of winning these days, so I've got to use them when and where they'll do the most good."

After today's twilight game with the Tigers, in which Jim Bagby will seek his 14th victory against five losses, the Tribe will be idle until Friday night's contest with the White Sox in Cleveland Stadium.

Boudreau said that in line with his new policy he may send Mel Harder into Friday night's fray, although several other members of the Cleveland pitching staff will have had more rest by that time. He believes Harder will have the best chance against Chicago.

GREENWOOD SENIORS STRENGTHEN FIRST PLACE S. S. LEAD

Woody Walters Hurls 2-Hitter as League Champions Win, 10-7.

The Greenwood Seniors, current Sunday School softball league kingpins, strengthened their first place hold in action last night, downing the Forest Lawn team, 10-7, at Garfield park. Woody Walters limited the losers to three hits, while his mates battered Rummer for eight.

Greenwood clinched the pennant several weeks ago. Next week's games will mark the close of the league.

First Presbyterian, heretofore an underdog in the league race, came up with one of the season's few upsets last night by outscoring the Epworth No. 1 team, 6-5. Foreman, credited with the victory, allowed seven hits, while his club collected 14 off Virden and Shumate. The former was charged with the loss. W. Williams and Snyder led the winning batting attack with four hits in four trips to the plate. LeRoy Everly homered for the losers.

In the only other game the St. Mary team racked its sixth win of the season, an 8-5 verdict at the expense of the Greenwood No. 2 team. Murphy, the St. Mary hurler, hit safely in each of three times at bat.

The Huber-Hunkin-Conkey No. 2 Industrial league game originally scheduled for tonight at Garfield park has been temporarily postponed. It will be played at a later date.

The Holabird & Root-Commercial Steel softball game, which was to have been played tonight at Lincoln park, has been postponed.

Fred Carone will not be exactly a new face as the Italian from Boston wrestled some important matches here two years ago and should make Angelo a very good partner. RECORDS FALL AS CHAMP SHOOTS FOR THIRD OHIO CROWN

Par-Smashing 63 Gives Byron Nelson Big Edge in Open Golf Meet.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 19—"Lord Byron" Nelson, Toledo, Inverness pro, almost had a strangle hold on his third straight Ohio open golf championship today, after clearing 10 strokes off par in the first 36 of the 72-hole medal play test yesterday at Mayfield Country club.

While most of the other pros and amateurs in the field of 70 had trouble over the rugged layout, Nelson turned in two of the best rounds of his career.

He hit the turn with seven birdies in a row for a 29 on the first nine in the morning, shared an eagle on the 18th for a 63, eight under par, and then, after losing a stroke to par on the first nine in the afternoon, had six threes on the last nine for a 69.

The 132 total, second lowest 36-hole score of his career, gave him a five stroke lead over sensational Herman Keiser of Akron, who roared back with a 67 in the afternoon after a morning round of 70.

Nelson's 63 erased the course record of 67 set several years ago by Maurice McCarthy of Cincinnati, three-time state amateur king.

In third place, 11 strokes back with totals of 143, were Al Espinosa of Akron and Phil Perkins of Cleveland, each a former winner of the state championship. Rod Munday, the Toledo star, was next with 148. Tied at 147 were such stars as Lloyd Gullickson of Canton, 1935 winner; Billy Burke of Cleveland, champion in 1938 and 1939 and National open victor in 1931, and Joe Novick of Cleveland.

Joe Fogg, Jr., of Cleveland paced the simon pure contingent with 150, or 18 strokes off the pace.

Other 36-hole scores included: (X-amateur)

Russ Beiswenger, Defiance, 78-73—151.

(X) Bill Boehm, Alliance, 80-77—157.

Jack Gray, Ashland, 81-78—159.

(X) Wallace Bower, Elyria, 75-93—168.

C. Debracey, Lorain, 85-88—173.

Withdrawals included: George Reed (X), Defiance, and Clark Black, Elyria.

Trotting Futurity Tops Harness Card at Saratoga Oval

By The Associated Press

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 19 — Trainer-driver Ben White goes after the $5,800 horseman futurity for three-year-old trotters tonight at Saratoga raceway.

White will pilot The Ambassador, Hambletonian winner. The eight horse field will include Pay Up, Scotland's Comet, Seven Up and Follow Me.

White, meanwhile, was still feeling repercussions of last night's $13,335 horseman stake in which he drove Volo Song to victory but was fined $100 for not trying in the second heat when the balky son of Volomite stalled leaving the barrier.

Horsemen found Volo Song and Mrs. James Johnson's Worthy Boy, who won the second dash, then bowed in the two horse race off, set a world record for three heats by two-year-olds on a half mile track, with their marks of 2:08¾, 2:09, and 2:06¼, eclipsing the 1936 standard of Dean Hanover and Schnapps.

Fourth Annual Event To Be Held at Country Club Course; Deadline for Entries is Aug. 30.

THE fourth annual Marion County Amateur Golf tournament, sponsored by the Y.M.C.A., will be held during September at the Marion Country club course on Route 4, south of Marion, Y.M.C.A. officials announced today.

In previous years the tournament has been open to men only. However, a women's tourney will be held this year. While many Marion county women golfers are busily engaged in canteen work and allied programs, the committee in charge felt that at least one flight of 16 women could be organized.

Entries and qualifying score must be on file with tournament officials by midnight, Aug. 30. An entry fee of $2.50 must accompany each entry. The entry fee was boosted from $2.00 to $2.50 this year in order to allow more money for prizes. In previous tournaments, it was pointed out, $1.50 was turned over to the tournament course for green fees and the remaining 50 cents was placed in the prize fund. In several cases prizes for flight champions did not equal the entry fee.

To Defend Title

John Rife, defending champion and three-time winner of The Marion Star championship trophy, will be seeking his fourth consecutive triumph. He won the opener in 1939 over the Mar-O-Del, his home course. In 1940 he won the same event over the tricky Country club course. Again last year he won over the Mar-O-Del layout.

As a result of his three championships in a row, he gained permanent possession of The Star trophy. A new trophy will be supplied this year by The Star. In order to retain the trophy permanently, a golfer must win the championship three times.

Following completion of the qualifying round, the entrants will be divided into flights of 16 each. Prizes will be awarded to the four top golfers in each flight.

The $2.50 entry fee will allow each entrant one practice round at the Country club course.

No Sunday Play

Entry blanks may be filed at either course, at the Y.M.C.A., or with Miss Margaret Gasparik, who is secretary of the Scioto Ordnance Plant Golf club and is handling tournament arrangements at the ordnance plant. Qualifying scores should be turned in at either club.

Because of a Country club rule against non-club tournaments on Sunday, only the 36-hole finals match will be played on Sunday. All other matches, with possible exception of semi-final matches must be played during the week.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the tournament are: Howard Henry, chairman, Harold Henry, John Rife, Bill Schimmel, R. T. Lewis, Miss Margaret Gasparik and Mrs. Becky Campbell.

Elsewhere on the sports page of The Star today is an entry blank for the tourney.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—Help, help! ..like the famous golfer who went to Hades, the soldiers down at Camp Croft, S. C., have a swell driving range but virtually no practice balls ..Capt. Robert G. Stephens Jr., forwards the sad news that hundreds of soldiers have been turned away within the past two weeks and unless several thousand usable golf balls can be acquired, the sport likely will be discontinued.. P. S.. when Jack Cummins, former Shawnee-On-Delaware pro, ran into the same situation, he wrote to some pro-golfer friends. First to come through were Craig Wood with two dozen and Harry Lewis of Cleveland's Acacia club with 60.

Taking Things Lightly — Major league clubs that think they've had troubles with twilight games lasting too long, should listen to this one about a Lynchburg-Newport News doubleheader in the Virginia league ....The first game was a long one, interrupted by rain, and the clouds made things so dark it finally had to be called because the ump ruled a game started by daylight couldn't be finished under the lights. Then the arcs were turned on and the second tilt began.... But by the second inning the clouds had moved away, the sun was shining, so the lights were turned off and the game finished by daylight.

OCCUPYING FORCE UNLOADS SUPPLIES ON PACIFIC ISLAND

Marines carry supplies ashore from barges pulled up on the beach as they begin setting up a base on a southwest Pacific island. Although the marines came prepared for battle, no enemy forces were present on this island to oppose the landing and it was a peaceful one—far different from the action on the Solomon Islands where U. S. forces are fighting to dislodge the Japanese from the Tulagi harbor area. This picture was taken by a marine combat photographer.

force is in progress," DNB said.

The British attack was aimed at the town and harbor of Dieppe and developed on both sides of the town, it reported.

The broadcast several hours after the start of the raid said "whether there are still British troops in the town or harbor of Dieppe or whether they now are only on both sides of the town along the coast could not be ascertained here at this moment."

It added that "in previous cases German reports never mentioned that British armored fighting vehicles had been landed."

Strong air and naval forces backed up the British attack which was carried out with the aid of tanks, DNB said.

German artillery quickly went into action and destroyed several of the British tanks, the German news agency added.

It said Nazi "counter-measures were being applied according to plan."

CURACAO FORCES HUNT ENEMY SUB

Two Torpedoes Explode on Beach Near Willemstad.

By The Associated Press

WILLEMSTAD, CURACAO, NETHERLANDS WEST INDIES, Aug. 19—Allied navy and army forces started search for enemy submarines off the south coast of Curacao today after two torpedoes exploded on the beach.

An official announcement said "Late yesterday afternoon explosions were felt throughout the city of Willemstad and persons on the south shore of Curacao saw water geysers thrown into the air at spots where two enemy torpedoes struck the beach. Appropriate action was taken immediately by naval and military authorities, and within a few minutes depth charges had been dropped in the suspected areas."

Curacao, an oil refining center is garrisoned by United States forces in cooperation with the Dutch.

The firing of the torpedoes marked the third attack in this area by enemy submarines. On Feb 16 a submarine shelled oil installations on the island of Aruba, and on April 19 another shelled similar installations at Bullen bay.

A large number of Marion soldiers are among the allied troops stationed on the Netherlands island of Curacao.

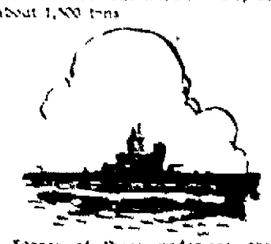
The modern submarine costs approximately $3,000,000. Torpedo warfare on the sea was highly developed in World War I and America has kept apace and is building the most efficient subs in the world today. The newest submarines displace about 1,500 tons.



Scores of these undersea craft are under construction in U. S. Navy Yards for service wherever they are needed. The voluntary purchase of War Bonds by Americans everywhere will insure our Navy parity with our enemies, the Japs and the Nazis. Invest at least ten percent of your income in War Bonds every pay day so we can have the "Subs" we need.

BRISK START EASES LATER

Profit Selling Blunts Move Upward After Flurry at Opening.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—The stock market exhibited considerable bullish spirit in the first hour today but thereafter buying enthusiasm waned and prices settled into an uneven range.

Profit selling blunted the early forward drive which carried a fair number of leaders to new highs for the last year or longer. The rails, a center of active buying in recent sessions, for a time maintained a good balance in the face of substantial offerings, but their resistance weakened near the fourth hour. Some pivotals dropped in the wake of a steep fall in American Telephone.

But Telephone, down more than 2 points at one time, came back swiftly after midday on the declaration of the regular dividend of $2.25 a share. Wall street had been talking about the possibility of a cut in the dividend in view of increased taxes and recent dividend reduction by certain subsidiary Bell companies.

Among stocks slightly on the improved side at one time or another were Union Pacific, Pennsylvania, Columbia Pictures, Goodyear, Youngstown Sheet, United Aircraft, Atlantic Refining, Phelps Dodge, Cerro De Pasco and Dow Chemical. Monsanto Chemical edged up about 2 points. Stocks lacking rising power included Chrysler, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber Preferred, U. S. Steel and Bethlehem.

Bonds and commodities were irregular.

In the curb modest advances were recorded by Arkansas Natural Gas "A", and Creole Petroleum. Sherwin Williams climbed more than a point while Northern States power "A," Pantepec Oil and Electric Bond & Share dipped.

ROOSEVELT PEACE EFFORT FAILS IN N. Y. CONTEST

Opposing Camps Go Into Convention Today.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—Failure of a last-minute effort by President Roosevelt to effect a compromise in the battle over a New York Democratic gubernatorial nominee sent opposing leaders into a final scramble for delegates today as the party's first state convention floor fight in 24 years impended.

No quarter was asked or given by either side after rejection of a peace plea by the President, read last night by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman at a four-hour "harmony" dinner that left party leaders still at odds as the convention opened in Brooklyn today.

The exact peace formula proposed by the President was not made public.

State Democratic Chairman James A. Farley, who is supporting State Attorney General John J. Bennett against U. S. Senator James M. Mead, the President's choice for the nomination, said only that the Roosevelt message offered "various suggestions to lead to a compromise."

GREEN REAPPOINTED

Civilian Police Chief Appointed

D. J. MacDonald has been appointed chief of Marion auxiliary civilian defense police by W. R. Martin, civilian defense coordinator for the city, to take the place of E. M. Breithaupt, who resigned recently because of ill health.

A meeting of the auxiliary police will take place Thursday night at 7:30 at the police station. All volunteers, regardless of non-completion of first aid courses, are urged to be present. The first aid requirement has been waived by headquarters. Identification certificates will be presented volunteers for their work.

FOOD SHORTAGE SEEN BY COMMITTEE HEAD

Southern Congressman Says Nothing Done About It.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 — The United States and other United Nations are headed straight for an acute food shortage, chairman Hampton Fulmer (D-SC) of the house agriculture committee said today, and nothing is being done about it.

It will come about the end of 1943, the outspoken Carolina farmer predicted in an interview, and "the officials and bureaucrats handling the program now won't do anything about it until it smacks them right in the face."

Fulmer said he based his belief on a growing shortage of farm labor and what he described as an increasing tendency to disregard the problems of the farmer.

Meanwhile, the war production board's food requirements committee headed by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard recommended government allocation of meats to butcher shops and other retail outlets to permit equitable distribution of limited supplies.

The recommendation resulted from an unprecedented war demand for meats during a seasonal shortage that developed in several sections of the country, particularly in the east.

Fulmer asserted that despite governmental pleas for bumper crops to furnish food for the United Nations, the war food program is falling down because farmers simply cannot get the labor they need to raise big crops.

900 Civilians Needed for Bomb Work School

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 19—The state needs 900 civilians to train in bomb reconnaissance schools to be established Sept. 15 in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, and West Virginia.

Col. Robert S. Marsh, office of civilian defense liaison officer for the army's fifth service command, said tentative arrangements for the program were made at a conference here yesterday with Dan T. Moore of Cleveland, regional OCD director.

He estimated that 1,500 recruits would be needed in the four-state area, 900 of them in Ohio, to handle various phases of work resulting from aerial bombardment.

BRICKER LIMITS CAMPAIGN

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 19—Gov. Bricker says the war will limit his campaigning for reelection to "a few talks to present the issues of the campaign clearly to the people." Bricker, appointing his executive secretary, Don Power, as campaign manager, reported yesterday that the war program has doubled the work in the governor's office. The time will not be available for the personal campaign I have always made in all sections of the state . . ."

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

"INCIDENTALLY," my father went on, "it will be some time before I can arrange for you and Richard to start. I must get Katharine off first. So as soon as you have packed, lie down and sleep until Richard awakens you. I will have him come up here as soon as Katharine goes, and I will stay at the Underwood home while you are gone. Now, au revoir. I shall return in less than an hour. Let me find you asleep."

He kissed me tenderly and went out. The door had no sooner closed behind him than the bedroom door opened and Katharine came into the living room.

"I know something important is afoot," she said, "by the tone of the Chief's voice. Is it anything I can know?"

"Indeed you can," I told her. "Part of it concerns you."

Katharine swayed and her hand went to her throat.

"Jack!" she said faintly.

"No, no," I almost shouted. "It is nothing even remotely concerning him."

Tells About Letter

Her color came back and I saw the wraith of a smile on her lips. Then I told her of Carolyn's letter, and my father's subsequent plans.

She listened quietly, and when I had finished sprang to her feet, her face showing more animation than I had seen in it since she come to the city in response to the forged summons she believed Jack had sent her.

"Oh, I am so glad of this!" she exclaimed. "You can't imagine what this inaction is doing to me. If I were only doing something to help Jack!"

"I think you are by just being at hand if he should need you," I told her, "and I am sure my father will wish you to return here as soon as this affair of Carolyn is disposed of.

"She's going to be a hard nut to crack, that girl," Katharine said, "and I don't envy Lillian the job. And just think of it, Madge! I'll be with your blessed youngsters again for a day or two at least. How I have missed them!"

Madge To Take a Nap

A less useful woman would have said "my blessed youngsters," and would have wounded me deeply, for it always gives my heartstrings a tug to realize that another woman has the chief care of my children.

"They undoubtedly have missed you even more," I said. "Kiss them for me, and tell them I'll be home as soon as I can."

"I'll do that," she said, "but before all details about Carolyn have been ironed out by your father and Ronald, you'll have time for a nap. You'll only want an overnight bag for an emergency, and I know what goes into it."

"It's virtually packed now," I replied.

"Then I'll finish it," she said, "so get into a negligee now and snatch a nap until Dickey wakens you."

"My father's plan, exactly," I told her.

"Great minds," she quoted, and pulled me up from my chair.

"I'll kiss you good-bye now," she said, "and I don't want to hear a peep out of you until Dicky comes over to relieve me.

"I imagine there'll be quite a hiatus between my departure and yours, so you'll have a chance to sleep an hour or two."

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

Getting School Army Fit

The children are getting ready to go to school. They are Democracy's army of the future. It is in order that they have the freedom to carry on that we are going through all this agony.

Just as the army of the fighting forces must be prepared against the danger of bad health, so the army of school children must be prepared so that, as far as possible, poor health will not interfere with their campaign for education.

Every year I advise parents along this line at this season. Every year a new army of youngsters appears to enter school. So I feel it my duty to repeat the advice every year.

The greatest dangers to youth are the contagious diseases. Children have not developed their immunities yet and any germ may lay them low. When a person has lived as long as I have in this vale of germs, he has been exposed to nearly everything in the way of bacterial life and has developed protections. I could go into any epidemic with a good chance of coming out unscathed. I haven't had a cold for ten years.

But not so the beginning citizen. New-born babies have a passive immunity to most contagions which they get from their mothers. But this wears out at the end of six or eight months. These new-born babies are not exposed to much cross infection. Their milk supply is, or should be, uninfected.

At about six months, as I said, the passive immunity begins to wear off and the individual has to develop active immunity from his own cells. He either does this or active immunity is artificially supplied to him by vaccines.

To show how natural immunity grows year by year: in the days when diphtheria vaccination was not yet done on a large scale, groups of school and preschool children were examined by the Schick test to determine their immunity to diphtheria. This is the way the age groups were reported:

Age 1 year—60 per cent of all individuals susceptible to diphtheria and showed no immunity.

Age 5 years—40 per cent of all individuals susceptible to diphtheria and showed no immunity.

Age 10 years—30 per cent of all individuals susceptible to diphtheria and showed no immunity.

Age 15 years—12 per cent of all individuals susceptible to diphtheria and showed no immunity.

Age 30 years—In city dwellers 5 to 10 per cent susceptible; in rural districts as high as 40 per cept susceptible.

This increasing immunity is acquired either by having the disease, or by contacts with carriers—playmates, parents, companions—so that you engulf a few germs from time to time and kill them off, thus conditioning your cells to produce antitoxin. Notice ho wmuch less protection rural dwellers get; they live where there are few contacts, few carriers.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

I. S.: I saw in the paper something about Bulgarian belladonna root in the treatment of Parkinson's disease. Where do I get it, and how much do I take?

Answer: Parkinson's disease, or the tremor known as paralysis agitans, has been treated by belladonna for many years. In 1927 a Bulgarian botanist claimed the Bulgarian belladonna root was better than any other and reported a number of cases who obtained astonishing relief. Since then it has been shown that the American root is just as good if properly prepared. But you don't get it, and you don't decide how much you take, because it has many dangerous actions and should be given only under the direction of a physician.

E. H. L.—What is the cause of swollen ankle and black and blue circulation? Is lamb wool and bandage good for same?

Answer: If it is in only one ankle, it probably is varicose veins. Lamb wool and bandage afford temporary relief.

Records of the Patent Office, department of commerce, show that the trolley car, incandescent lamp, automobile and cash register were among the inventions patented in 1880.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, Aug. 20

NOTWITHSTANDING sudden reversals, upsets and obstacles this day may be one of momentous events. These obstructions, commotions, emotional crises may be precipitated from and upon all phases of life, with the most spectacular reactions in the affectional, romantic, domestic and social contacts. Rash and violent outbursts, temper, turbulence and ungoverned acts and words may incite or exaggerate such conditions, with active opposition from elders or relatives. Nevertheless, the course of true love is likely to move in high culminations.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of spectacular adventures, with turmoil, quarrels, and sudden and devastating visitations that must be deemed hectic, passionate and violent. The enemity or vindictive antagonism of relatives or elders may heighten such angry crises. However, it seems as though the most ardent, fiery and ungoverned conduct would not swerve the emotional or sentimental passions.

A child born on this day may be tempestuous, hectic and violent, with strong emotional temperament.
